Introduction:

Importance of communication has always been realized all times in organisation as it is the most vital means of making people connect with one another. It is widely accepted fact that communication plays significant role in starting, developing and maintaining relations, however, organisations seem least bothered on how to develop good communication skills of the employees. Today, not only in corporate but in almost all aspects of social life, communication plays a crucial role. Thinking of effectiveness of any piece of work whether in business, government or social sector it is almost impossible to be successful without having good communication skills. People have to communicate with one other, exchange ideas, emotions, information, take decisions and talk about innovations. Developing communication skills, be it verbal or non-verbal is very-very important at a stage of student life itself.

Understanding Body Language is also equally or you can say sometimes more important than having good verbal communication. It provides you with an

It will also give you an ability to see and understand how your own Body Language is being seen. You will be able to adjust and improve the way you communicate through non-verbal communications.

Course Objective -

The main objective of the course is to assist the students developing their communication competence by providing information regarding different forms of communication and their appropriate use along with good understanding of body language.
